Auckland, New Zealand (November 2007).

Coral Princess, the South Pacific's ultimate small-ship cruise line, celebrates their 2007-2008 summer season by offering 20% off summer rates for five-night voyages exploring New Zealand's northern coastline.

Voyages aboard their multi-million dollar flagship Oceanic Discoverer depart from Auckland to the Bay of Islands or vice versa. Every cruise visits Tiri Tiri, one of only two scientific reserves in New Zealand, Great Barrier Island, historic Kawau Island, Port Fitzroy, Mokohinau, Whangamumu, Whangaroa Harbour and the Bay of Islands.

Passengers are privileged to observe and photograph rare native birds and wildlife, enjoy guided walks and lectures with expert naturalists, and explore New Zealand's secret coves on Oceanic Discoverer's purpose-built excursion vessel, Xplorer and her fleet of inflatable Zodiacs.

Oceanic Discoverer carries just 72 passengers in 36 cabins and has a cruising speed of 14 knots. The shallow draft of the 63m ship allows it to access the isolated places which Coral Princess Cruises are famed for visiting. Gourmet dining is complemented by selected Australian and New Zealand wine.

Coral Princess Cruises is proudly an Eco Certified company and promotes soft adventure and expedition-style encounters to promote eco-awareness. The small size of their ships allows guests to experience intimate and educational encounters, in the most environmentally sensitive ways possible.

Prices start at NZ$2,870 per person, twin share including GST, a saving of NZ$717. These include luxury accommodation in a main deck stateroom, all meals, expert lectures and services of expedition staff on board, coach transfers between Auckland and Bay of Islands, group activities during the cruise and landing fees.
